Crash Injuries Kill Woman

An elderly woman injured in a two-car collision Aug. 21 died early yesterday in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Coroner Dr. E. C. Hart called an inquest for 10 a.m. Friday at Hayward's funeral home into the death of Mrs. Anne Elizabeth Pritchard, 71, of 859 Richmond.

Mrs. Pritchard suffered injuries thought at first not to be serious when the car her husband was driving was in collision at Oak Bay and Richmond with one driven by Robert McDonald, Camp 6, Youbou.

Quemoy Buildup 'Illogical'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has pledged he would not press Nationalist China to reduce the size of its army on Quemoy. But he said he believes it illogical to keep so many troops on the shell-torn island.

ALGIERS (CP)—In brusque defiance of an appeal from the civilian and military governor, the Algerian Public Safety Committee Wednesday night persisted in its call for a general strike and mass demonstration today to protest against the policies of Premier Charles de Gaulle.

The newly demilitarized organization—which catapulted de Gaulle to power in France last summer—renewed its strike call only a short time after Gen. Raoul Salan called for calm and normal activity.

Salan said the "manifestations that have been called would not only be pointless, but would badly serve the public interest."

If It's Cancer Keep It Dark

LONDON (AP)—One of Britain's great surgeons has urged physicians to stop telling their cancer patients what they suffer from.

"You have to have a very strong personality to carry that knowledge," said Arthur Dickson-Wright, senior surgeon at London's St. Mary's Hospital.

"I estimated once that there were 300,000 people cured of cancer walking about in good health because they were never told by their doctors," Dr. Dickson-Wright said, adding he didn't think British doctors "should adopt the American attitude of telling patients they had cancer."

Social Register

OTTAWA (CP)—For all he knows, Prime Minister Diefenbaker may have been omitted from the "Social Register of Canada," the new listing of 40,000 of Canada's social upper crust. (See Page 6.)

At any rate, he hasn't been notified that his name is included.

The subject of the social register arose as Mr. Diefenbaker chatted with reporters outside the cabinet chamber. One reporter said that all persons listed in the book, to be published today, have been notified.

"Have you been notified?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked the reporter.

When the reporter said no, the prime minister replied with a grin:

"I think you and I are in the same box then. We didn't get notified."

Hitler-Like Violence

Stop Race Haters Evangelist Urges

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham Wednesday night called on Christians to use their influence to halt the bombings of schools, churches and synagogues.

The evangelist told his Charlotte crusade audience that recent bombings are the work of "hate groups" who are "taking advantage of the present racial tensions." (See page 19.)

He said such bombings, coupled with an "alarming" crime rate, could eventually be "the seeds for anarchy and overthrow of the government."

The bombing of schools and houses of worship, the evangelist said, "are symptomatic of the type of thing that brought Hitler to power. It could eventually lead to a union between forces of crime and hate groups which would lead to anarchy."

"Whether we're for integration or against it, all of us are agreed on one thing," he said. "We don't want violence, and we are against the use of sticks of dynamite."

Auction Records Tumble

LONDON (UPI)—Money-laden art collectors last night paid a record total of $2,186,000 in a 21-minute auction of seven masterpieces by the four greatest painters of the French Impressionist School.

The highest price paid was $650,000 for Cezanne's "Garçon au Gilet Rouge."

Both the total value of the sale and the price of the Cezanne were record highs.

PREVIOUS RECORDS

The previous top price for a single picture was $291,200 paid in Paris last year for a Gauguin. The previous London sale record was $1,694,000 for 80 pictures. World record was $1,700,000 for 70 paintings in New York last year.

Some of the biggest names in the art collecting business packed Sotheby's famed auction rooms here to bid on the seven paintings from the estate of the late Jacob Goldschmidt, a Berlin and New York banker.

After the Cezanne, the other paintings brought these figures: Manet's self-portrait, $182,000; Manet's "La Promenade: Portrait de Madame Garmy au Jardin de Bellevue," $249,200; Manet's "La Rue de Berne," $316,400; Van Gogh's "Public Gardens at Arles," $369,600; Cezanne's "Still life with Apples," $252,000; Renoir's "La Pensee," $201,000.

21 MINUTES

The whole sale lasted just 21 minutes.

The first Manet opened with a bid of $14,000 and was quickly bid up to $172,000, paid by John Summers.

AUDIENCE GASPS

Bidding for the second Manet was slower, but a firm of New York art dealers, Georges Keller, took the bidding to $249,200. The same firm bought the third Manet and the audience in the auction room gasped when the $780,000 total figure was reached.

The Van Gogh painting began at $56,000 and climbed swiftly to $210,000. A bidder in one of the other rooms, watching the sale on a closed-circuit television setup, telephoned a bid of $280,000, but the final price was $369,600.

BEST LEFT

The 19th century paintings were considered by experts to be the best left outside the world's art galleries and museums.

Vancouver Judge Says:

Lash Needed For Vandals

VANCOUVER (CP)—Judge S. J. Remnant of Vancouver said Wednesday that vandalism can be discouraged by use of the lash.

"I am firmly of the opinion that if not cured it could at least be discouraged if it were possible for me to sentence you to a short term of imprisonment and whipping, but the law does not permit such a penalty," the judge said.

Two Burned In Tug Fire

Two men were burned and a tugboat was heavily damaged when it caught fire at the Jordan River booming grounds of the Canadian Puget Sound Lumber and Timber Company about 4:30 p.m. yesterday.

Roger Leduc and Austin Kirby, both of Jordan River, are in Royal Jubilee Hospital, with face and arm burns. Their condition was given last night as "fairly good."

A company official said last night damage to the "fairly large" tug had not been assessed but was "heavy." He said that the superstructure was "pretty well burned off."

The fire started, apparently, from the boat's engine, as the two men were preparing to go into the river to pick up a tow rope from a larger tug. The men were brought to Victoria by private car.

Alderman Dreams Of False Alarm

DUNCAN—City fire warden, Ald. R. K. Cairns, told city council he had a suppressed desire to turn in a false fire alarm.

He said he could easily understand how some children could turn in a fire call by breaking the glass on an alarm box.

"That's just what I would like to do," he confessed. "I've always had an impulse to try one of those little hammers and see what would happen."

Coddling Causes Lack of Initiative

Indians' Thinking

All Done for Them

(This is the 43rd chapter of "The Strangers," a searching report on the plight of B.C. native Indians)

Some critics feel that the federal government still guides the affairs of Indian bands with too heavy a hand.

More power was assigned to band councils by the revised Indian Act of 1951. But some superintendents, half-unconsciously, favor the councilors who go along with their wishes, and set a higher value on a tidy administration than on training the Indians to run their own business.

Every decision of importance still must be approved by the superintendent or by Ottawa. Negotiations between Indians and people who lease their land are carried on wholly or partly by government officials. The Hawthorn Report asks:

"... How would we feel if all our democratic institutions... could only approach their business through... an office controlled by a federal civil servant; if we did not speak to advisors on sanitation affairs, on irrigation, or to purchasers of potential property... if the speaking were done for us... by a person who represented the federal government?"

"Such a situation... would hardly be conducive to the growth of liberty and civil responsibility. We would soon degenerate into passive ciphers or become bitterly opposed to the bureaucratic system."

"Yet that is precisely the situation, and it is precisely the reaction of the Indians to it."

In some agencies, bands lease out valuable lands without ever meeting their tenants. The Indian superintendent carries out negotiations. The council says "Yes," "No," or "We want more money," but its members

In other agencies, however, government officials and band councilors work in partnership.

By permission of Cowichan band council, I attended a recent council meeting in Duncan. Superintendent J. V. Boys sat at his desk at one side of the office. Chief Councillor Edwood Modeste (the chairman), secretary Louise Underwood and councilors sat at the other side.

The council debated a number of matters, from houses to hunting, leases and garbage disposal. Councilors made the decisions; but when they seemed puzzled or indecisive, the superintendent advanced tactful suggestions. Sometimes they seemed to be waiting for his guidance. A councilor who had taken part in negotiations with the city of Duncan about a joint garbage disposal plan began to deliver a report; but he spoke only in general terms. After a few minutes he gestured toward the superintendent as though asking him to go on.

Conduct Their Own Debate

Mr. Boys responded with a detailed account of how the garbage plan would work. Several other times he came forward with maps or technical information. But unless the debate was bogged down, he did not intervene. As councilors advance in education and confidence, the superintendent's job may become more like that of a municipal clerk.

Duncan was once a centre of strong ill-feeling between Indians and whites. The city felt it was hemmed in by Indian land. The Indians thought (and some still do) that white men had moved markers and encroached on the reserve. The old golf course, on leased Indian land, went out of business when the Indians raised their price. There was some hard feeling when the Indians won a lawsuit to regain possession of the Agricultural grounds and the hall which the agricultural society had built. The land was leased for many years at a token $1 a year.

There was friction more recently about pollution of the Cowichan River by city sewage.

But most of these grievances have been ironed out. Friendly relations exist between the band and the city. A sizeable part of Indian reserve was actually taken into the city not long ago. Indians living on the reserve still will not pay taxes on any land that lies within the city. But non-Indians who have put up buildings on leased land will pay taxes to the city, and receive city services like light, water and fire protection.

"We have one of the most exclusive building areas in Canada," says Mayor Jack Dobson. "You have to be an Indian before you can build there."

Duncan city council and Cowichan band council have held several joint meetings.

A business section is growing on leased Indian land. Among the businesses are three garages, a feed store, a gas depot, a junk yard, a blacksmith's shop, a freight depot and supermarket. Some rents go to individual Indian property-owners, some go to the band.

Other B.C. bands also have sizeable incomes for leases. Musquam band, near UBC, is leasing a tract of land to a golf course for $29,999 a year and has vegetable-growing foreshore and other leases totalling about $8,000 more. There are 150 people in the band. The band income is certain to grow.

Squamish band, with 800 members, has a band income of some $10,000 a year; is considering an offer by a housing firm to lease 67 acres at $134,335 a year for 99 years. Its urban lands, with a potential value of some $1,000,000, make the Squamish one of the wealthiest bands in Canada.

Are They Overprotected?

At a recent Indian conference, Squamish delegate Andy Paul said his band was anxious to have continued expert help from the Indian Affairs branch in negotiating leases.

I asked Col. H. M. Jones, director of Indian Affairs, what he thought of the Hawthorn plan of moving band funds more directly into the control of the band councils and encouraging Indians to take a more active part in their own business dealings.

"Yes," he said sadly. "Perhaps we have protected them too much. Perhaps we should let them make more of their own mistakes."

Hot-headed bands might rush into unwise deals and soon eat up their capital.

But perhaps there is a middle course: let the Indian councils have somewhat more, not all the financial control; launch an intensive plan to train Indians for business and administration; recruit more Indians for the staff of the Indian Affairs branch.

If the superintendent of an agency was himself an Indian, some of his own people might be envious and unco-operative. But he would be a living example of Indian achievement. His existence would break the pattern of dependence on white people.

Candidates for this job would have to be intelligent men able to see other people's viewpoints; close enough to the Indian way of life to understand it, yet capable of drawing apart and seeing its faults. Nor would the best men be drawn from the group of Indians who have made a clean break from their people and look on all Indian attitudes with impatience.

Many such people are more intolerant, and might do more harm, than bigoted whites. The Hawthorn Report urges that small bands should amalgamate to an economical size; that councilors and administrative specialists be trained; and that transfer of band membership be made easier.

For Indian education, Canada is divided into agencies, each in charge of a superintendent. The Hawthorn report suggests that bands send representatives to agency councils, which would gradually take over administration of Indian affairs, including the spending of money.

Indians are clustered in units called bands. A band is not the same thing as a municipality. Nor is it the same as a family or co-operative real estate holding company. It is a bit of both. The band holds land and timber. With the aid of the Indian Affairs branch, it provides community services. Each person has an equal share in the band fund. If he leaves the band, he takes it with him. If he enters another band—the band council must vote to accept him—he becomes an equal shareholder in that band. Some bands don't want new members, because they are unwilling to share what they have.

Some Band Money Wasted

Much of the band money is poured out for projects that bring no revenue, like houses and relief—some of it for people who don't really need relief and could pay for their houses out of earnings.

The Hawthorn Report urges that band administration should be split in two parts: one part like a municipality, supplying services, levying taxes; the other part a corporation, looking after band assets, conserving capital. Then bands would be less reluctant to let in new members, and Indians could move more freely from one reserve to another, to find the sort of work they liked. They could live on a reserve without holding shares in the band's assets.

Officials of the Indian Affairs branch seem lacking in enthusiasm for the Hawthorn proposals to divide bands in two parts and hand over more administrative and financial responsibility to the Indians.

"That's all right in theory," said one official, "but I don't know any bands in B.C. who are ready for that, or anywhere near it."

Better schooling, welfare, job openings and administrative changes themselves will not kindle self-reliance. Such things are the firewood. The spark to set it alight must come from the Indians themselves. It may be religion, renewed pride of race, pride of material achievement, or a blend of all of them. Chances are, that is there is enough dry wood, the Indian people will strike that spark.

The rebuilding of Indian communities will have to be tackled from several directions. The Hawthorn report points out that a tractor is more likely to do a village good if a man is trained to run it and an organization formed to control its use. In time, the tractor may be linked with vocational training, buildings, roads and stores.

Attending the 11th annual group conference of the Western Association of Canadian Highway Officials at the Empress Hotel, he said mining interests are poised ready to work the rich mineral deposits of the northland as soon as roads make it economically feasible. This year $4,000,000 is being spent on roads in the northland and that is expected to be increased next year as the development project gains momentum, he said.

Already constructed is 140 miles of 24-foot gravel road, and the right-of-way is cleared for 332 miles. No limit has been set on the amount of road to be built.

Eager Boys Learned And Earned

This year 120 youths were employed on the parks division youth training program. Recreation Minister Earle Westwood said yesterday.

The youths, between 16 and 18, work in provincial parks from Mount Robson to Manning for $3 a day for first-year personnel and $3.25 per day for second-year personnel with free board, lodging and traveling.

They are paid for a six-day week, but work only five on the projects. One half-day is dedicated to sports activity and visits to nearby plants.

Duration of the project is from July 1 to Aug. 31, and work consists of trail clearing, camp and picnic site construction and allied projects.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

RECENTLY we have been staying in a house with a wood stove. It's a big heavy one with a nickel rail in front and warming compartments at the top.

I sat in a kitchen chair for a little while and propped my feet on the open oven door, the of oil in it. I don't mean just a few of the houses with oil

Sometimes the smell is faint, but it is always there.

It felt good to escape from our oily little monster and prop my feet on the oven of a wood stove, and hear the fire crackling, and smell the clean aroma of a wood fire.

I felt sad when we moved my mother, out of the old house, and they disconnected the wood stove to take to the auction room. What a workhorse that stove had been, and what memories were engrained in it!

I remember when I was struck by a craze for "conkers" (the English term that my dad and I used) or chestnuts, to use the Canadian term. I wanted to make the chestnuts hard in a hurry, so I baked them in the oven.

But I notice that every house I enter where there is an oil stove has that heady smell

Cluttered with Conkers

For days that stove was cluttered with conkers, or chestnuts. My parents must have been long suffering. But I think I was too zealous, because I baked many of the chestnuts too long and hot, and they cracked.

On the water heater next to the stove, my dad and I used to stick stamps that had been soaked off envelopes, and leave them to dry.

When the heat penetrated the stamps they would curl up and fall on the floor, where we retrieved them for the collection, so to add to our store of duplicates.

And then there was a time when several friends and I conceived the idea of making maple syrup. Our trees were not sugar maples—they don't grow here—but we learned that all maple sap has a certain amount of sugar in it.

There were several maple trees in the yard, mostly small ones. My dad showed me how to make a spiral cut in the bark, the way he used to tap the rubber trees in West Africa, and drive a tin spout in drop the maple juice in a can.

When we had several cans brimming, my friends and I would put them on the stove, and render them for hours and hours, leaving scarcely any room for my mother to cook lunch and supper.

Finally the quarts and quarts of maple sap were rendered down to about half an inch of thick liquid. It had a strange, woody taste, as I remember, but it was syrup.

Sometimes I sneaked in wet socks and rubber boots to be dried out briefly in the oven after wading in the river fishing, or playing in the snow. I remember the pungent smell they had.

Those were just a few of the jobs the old wood stove did. It gave you splinters in the fingers, sometimes, when you brought in the wood. But I liked the old wood stove, and I wish I was sitting in my parents' kitchen again on a winter's day with my feet on the oven door, dreaming a boy's dreams, and hearing my father's tales of the distant countries.

Problems of Mental Health

DISSATISFACTION and in some quarters grave concern over the state of British Columbia's mental health services may be allayed in some degree by Provincial Secretary Black's announcement that an independent investigation of the system will be undertaken. In the circumstances that appears to be the best course for the government to take. The intention is to have the examination of the existing system made by experts of the American Psychiatric Association, whose convention in Kansas City Mr. Black will attend next week. If suitable arrangements can be made the inquiry would be undertaken by specialists in the field of mental illness on whose findings and recommendations full reliance could be placed.

That there is room for improvement in this province's mental health services does not appear to be denied by anyone; but in fairness to the government it should be said that the problems and difficulties now besetting treatment are not peculiar to British Columbia. They appear to be common to most regions, and are attributed to inability to secure sufficient numbers of trained and qualified men and women to staff the hospitals. The seriousness of this shortage was evidenced recently in the government's dismaying disclosure that long-delayed plans for the construction of a new and urgently needed mental hospital on Vancouver Island had been postponed indefinitely because of staff shortages.

Until last week public complaints against the standards and adequacy of the B.C. service had come largely from laymen—though laymen with knowledge of the workings of the system. At the B.C. Medical Association convention in Kelowna last week, however, a noted doctor voiced a sweeping condemnation of the service as a whole; and no doubt his widely-publicized statements had some bearing on the government's decision to call for an independent investigation.

One would have to be unrealistically optimistic, however, to expect from it a magic solution. Despite the fact that British Columbia has been accused of starving the service for funds it is spending more money on mental health than ever before, so that money alone may not be the answer. If this field is unattractive to men and women seeking a career, how are they to be persuaded to enter it?

The Montgomery Plan

THE current publication of Viscount Montgomery's memoirs has renewed interest in the strategy employed by the Allied command on the European front. Most top-ranking generals then engaged have already given their version of the war, and now that the famous field marshal has laid off his uniform he has come forward with his views. Since he is typically the "Monty" of legend and renown his frankness is provocative, and there is sure to be controversial discussion as a result.

The field marshal says bluntly that had his plan for a single massive thrust on Berlin after the Normandy break-out been adopted, instead of the slower broad-front advance which took place, the war would have been over in 1944, with of course a consequent great saving in lives. The former German chief of staff on that front agrees with him, and so does Canada's brilliant corps commander of that day, Lieut.-General Guy Simonds.

This thesis is not new, although it receives a fresh emphasis in being proclaimed by the British field marshal in his own terms. Students of the last war have long been aware of the Montgomery plan for the swift capture of Berlin and destruction of German resistance in the fall of 1944. Many histories of the campaign disclose the conflict of ideas between Montgomery and General Eisenhower at this stage of the war. There is every probability also that if given a free hand Montgomery could have ended the war six months sooner than was the case.

Unfortunately, however, wars are not fought on straight military lines, especially where a coalition of forces is concerned; there are political connotations and the niceties of national prestige to be considered by a supreme commander. Had Eisenhower been a field general capable of directing the thrust himself, instead of a military statesman whose invaluable role was chiefly to harmonize the coalition of forces under his command, the situation might have been different. As it was, adoption of the Montgomery plan would have meant permitting the British field marshal to direct large numbers of U.S. troops, a circumstance not congenial to American general opinion. It is only fair to remember, however, that in his eagerness for one, single land commander instead of two—himself and General Bradley—Montgomery offered to serve under the latter to secure cohesion and unified operation.

Other factors intervened, as for instance the appeasement of Russian aims at the time, and so the Montgomery plan remains as one of the "ifs" of history. Had it been adopted and proved successful, however, the world would be a much different place today. Berlin would not be an "island" within the iron curtain; Germany might not have been split in two; and the line of that curtain would have been much farther east than it is. The whole postwar set-up of Europe would have been changed, and greatly for the better. That is the irony inherent in the Montgomery story now being published.

Too Far Out of Town

PROPOSALS to the contrary, it is difficult to see any prospect for restoration of Victoria's annual fall fair at a point as remote as 18 miles from the city, whether in association with a racetrack or not. The Sandown track at Sidney is farther from Victoria than Saanichton, where there is already a well-developed agricultural exhibition under Saanich auspices. How would 60,000 people living in the city, and twice that number in close environs, get to Sidney and what would they have to pay for their transportation on any system of public transit? Such a development would be economically unsound.

Victoria has had a good long time to realize what it did to itself with the hasty sale and transfer of the Willows fair grounds to Oak Bay. There was not another site like it in the vicinity, and the exhibition buildings though depleted by fire were still in place. The restoration of a fall fair under any enduring arrangement now may prove vastly more difficult in a community which has been built up nearly solidly in the intervening years. Still the answer, if there is one, does not appear to rest in going to the north end of the Saanich peninsula. That is too far entirely.

Interpreting the News

Nasser Surveys Arab Republic

By JOSEPH MacSWEENE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEWS from the Middle East indicates that President Nasser is putting his house in order—and perhaps dropping a few broad housekeeping hints to his neighbors as well. Nasser has been comparatively quiet since world attention shifted from the Middle East to the Formosan straits. But renewed blasts of vilification from the United Arab Republic's government-controlled radio may mean that the dictator is ready for a new phase of his pan-Arab campaign.

He has consolidated his domestic position by appointing a 21-man cabinet to rule the U.A.R. just over eight months after it was formed by the union of Egypt and Syria.

In doing so, Nasser gained tighter control over the Syrian region and pointedly dropped one of his Syrian vice-presidents, Sabri El-Aassali, who was premier of Syria just before the merger. Fifteen of the new cabinet members are Egyptian and six Syrian, roughly proportional to the populations of the two areas.

Nasser knocked on the head any lingering ideas that Cairo and Damascus would be twin capitals, with the decree that Cairo alone would be the heart of the republic.

Developments in the new republic of Iraq, meanwhile, indicate that pro-Nasser forces are active there.

Premier Abdul Karim El-Kassem has found it necessary to arrest his comrade-in-arms and co-revolutionary, Col. Abdul Salam Arif, who was deputy premier in the new Iraqi regime until recently.

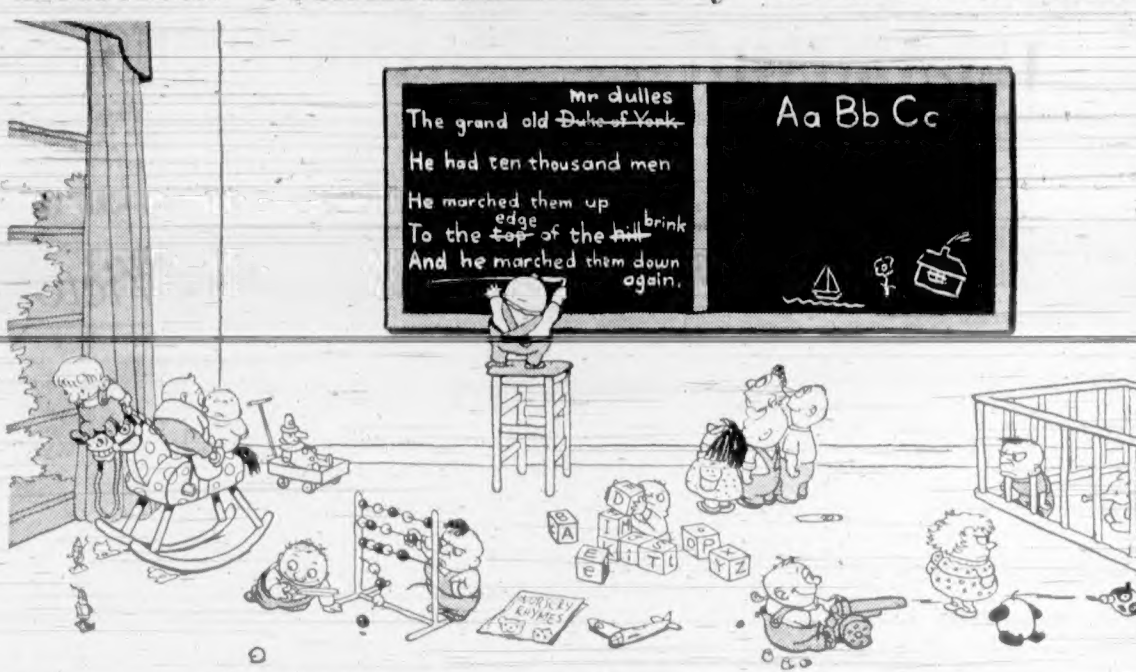

The premier moved in quickly, when he heard that army supporters of the colonel—who has made no secret of his affection for Nasser—were plotting to rise on his behalf. Salam Arif had been far from satisfied with the premier's plan to send him to Bonn as ambassador to West Germany.

In the middle of all this, Nasser-controlled newspapers and radio stepped up their campaign against British troops in Jordan, United States troops in Lebanon, and "foreign imperialists" in general, especially the U.S.

Such broadcasts are especially effective in the ears of the 1,000,000 Arab refugees in the Middle East and are a continuing source of danger in Jordan, where refugees make up nearly half the population.

The "hate campaign" took an especially virulent turn in an attack on President Eisenhower by the clandestine Jordanian People's Radio, which apparently is based in Damascus and handled by Jordanian exiles.

Thinking Aloud

Gerald Waring

"... of shoes and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

IN a remote part of Persia, it is reported, a man who never wears shoes has been found who is supposed to be 189 years old. His son, a mere youngster, died a few years ago at the age of 120.

Whether his longevity is due to his bare-footed preference the report does not say, although since babies like to kick off their booties perhaps there is a bet here that civilization has missed. It won't matter anyway, I suppose, for no one will believe the report.

That is the trouble with such tales: the cold light of academic research dampens enthusiasm. Nothing could be more delightful than to think that this old man was alive before Captain Vancouver ever saw the Strait of Juan de Fuca, and is still going strong. His name is Sayed Ali but perhaps it should be Johnny Walker.

Not long ago I stood—accidentally I hoped aside quickly when I discovered my irreverence—on the grave of an oldtimer whose fame is perpetuated by a certain liquid of renown. Old Parr they called him then as now, and he rests in Westminster Abbey because, I presume, he was reputed to be 152 years old when he died.

For all of his Abbey distinction, though, there is a big doubt about his age. An encyclopedia I consulted is most disconcerting on the subject of longevity: to put the matter bluntly it does not believe in stories of such long life. It cites a tombstone on which the inscription of 309 years turned out to be a chiseler's fancy way of carving 39, and another where the 2 of 207 had been superimposed on a 1.

Indeed it argues that there is no scientific evidence to back the idea that men of old lived longer than they do today. This means I suppose it doesn't believe in Methuselah either, which is a sad blow to one's romantic notions.

The average age is on the upgrade in most civilized countries but this is something distinct from longevity in particular. Leaving the Persian aside not many persons claim to exceed the century mark, although if one person can attain 100 years why should it not be possible for another to reach 120, for instance. Perhaps there is an age barrier just as there is a sound barrier, albeit the latter has been breached.

Philosophically however there is something unfair in man's ability to get close to the moon and yet not be able to rival Methuselah. I believe that large animals live longer than small ones, so perhaps the future longevity of the human race rests with size. Food alone, however, the encyclopedia tells me, will not do the trick.

We are what we eat, it is often said, yet I see that while St. Anthony lived a most austere life and lived to be 105 the painter Titian was anything but austere yet put a fine picture on canvas at the age of 96. There's no telling about people, you see.

It is nice to believe, nevertheless, that this old man of Persia was going the rounds, on bare feet too, almost 200 years ago. It gives us something to shoot at, and a better something really than aiming at the moon.

But then he lives in remote country and probably has been spared the stresses and strains of more enlightened areas. That will be why even allegedly he has attained such a grand milestone. Certainly no man of the modern world can expect to become 189 years old; the pension authorities would disbar him.

Reports from Ottawa

THREE assistant secretaries of defence slipped quietly into Ottawa one day last week for a talk with the top officials in our defence and defence production departments.

One of them, assistant secretary of the navy Fred A. Bantz, accidentally got his picture in the papers as a result of visiting a group of Sea Cadets. His colleagues, assistant air secretary Dudley C. Sharp and assistant army secretary Frank H. Higgins, preserved their anonymity—they were just strangers in business suits seen entering and leaving government offices.

There was nothing to connect the three with anything unusual happening here that day. Yet their visit to Ottawa was the first working level move to marry Canada's capacity for military production with that of the United States. It was the first concrete indication that a development of tremendous potential importance to Canadian industry, and indeed the whole Canadian economy, is actually on the rails.

The planned re-equipment of Canadian forces with American missiles will leave little much of our defence industry. However, if Canada and the U.S. were to produce their common defence needs jointly, Canadian industrial capacity could contribute towards the common defence on an equitable basis with that of the U.S.

In other words, we would have an integrated continental industrial machine to support the continental defence forces of the U.S. and Canada. This was the objective announced by Prime Minister Diefenbaker at the time of the cancellation of the defence programs supporting the all but washed out CF-105 Arrow. He had said the U.S. was prepared to work out production sharing arrangements with Canada. Sceptics said they'd believe it when they saw it. But the arrival of the three assistant secretaries indicates Washington really is ready to talk business.

The meeting was an exploratory one, ranging over possibilities and problems. Somewhat surprisingly, the Americans showed themselves eager to press on with production integration planning. Further meetings will be held shortly.

The crux of the problem of successfully ignoring the 49th parallel so far as defence production is concerned lies in determining a form and degree of integration which will be militarily, economically and politically acceptable to both nations. As one of the officials put it, "Integration with Washington and Ottawa can live with."

Basic to the plan must be American recognition that defence co-operation is a two-way street. That while many American defence plants are operating at less than capacity, so are many of ours. And that Canadian orders for U.S. equipment are helping U.S. industry keep busy, and at the same time are increasing the strength of defences protecting the U.S. from Soviet nuclear bombers.

Prejudicing integration are U.S. security laws like the McMahon Act; U.S. economic nationalism as evidenced by the "Buy American" Act, and the political facts of life south of the border. Favoring it are the U.S. interest in having a militarily strong ally to the north, and almost vital U.S. interest in Canadian real estate for defence purposes.

In any event, it's quite unlikely Canadian plants will be tooling up to turn out Bomarc missiles—it would be uneconomical. But chances now look much brighter for Canadian industry to get a fair share of the work required to keep continental defences abreast of the rapid advances in military science.

His Last Fling

By OMER ANDERSON, North American Newspaper Alliance

HAMBURG—The Sheikh of Kuwait, one of the three or four richest men in the world, is building a palace estimated to cost $100,000,000 in his tiny but immensely oil-rich Persian Gulf state.

Prof. Caesar Pinnau, the German architect charged with the interior decoration of the palace, said here that the sheik's new home—due for completion by next spring—will have 90 rooms and will be "more fantastic than an Arabian nights dream."

The palace, completely air-conditioned, will have a movie theatre seating 500; and one 20-room wing, with its own swimming pool, will be assigned to the sheik's harem, according to Professor Pinnau.

The architect described the dining room as "a forest of chandeliers." The room's floor and walls are of Italian marble and the ceiling is decorated in gold leaf, he said. At the sheik's instruction, Pinnau has awarded a contract to a West German firm for 200 dining room chairs, each of them 14-carat gold-plated.

Professor Pinnau, who estimated the palace's cost at $100,000,000, said that he has been ordered to complete the furnishing on a "crash" basis, with the spring of 1959 as the absolute deadline. He quoted the sheik as warning contractors that payment of bills cannot be guaranteed after that.

The reason for the haste, Pinnau said, is that the sheik fears President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic will win effective control over Kuwait's finances by next spring.

The sheik reportedly told Pinnau that the $100,000,000 palace is his "last fling" and that "no expense should be spared." President Nasser is scheduled to be guest of honor next spring at the "house warming" ceremonies, according to Pinnau.

The Packsack

of GREGORY CLARK

GETTING a day's work done is like packing a trunk or a suit case. Some people are wonderful. They can pack twice as much in a suit case as anyone else.

First, they lay everything out on the bed, all folded and in full view, not buried under something else. After spreading the suit case open on an adjoining chair, they size the situation up. And then, in the most orderly fashion they proceed, without pressure, without jumping up and down, without even kneeling on it, to place each article in the bag, merely patting it into position. When the bag is filled, the lid drops down, and they snap the locks in place with that smug expression that so infuriates us others.

Lots of us have never in our lives got a bag shut without sitting on the lid.

A day's work is much the same. There are some amongst us who pack away the day's work as if they were going on a journey with a travelling bag. They have room, or time, for everything. Everything is neatly laid out. They handle each item with assurance and pat it gently into place. Along about 4 o'clock in the afternoon they drop the lid and snick the locks.

They're the ones you see going in the bus a little before five, before the crush, with that smug expression on their faces.

Confused World

Mr. Nehru As Referee

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

JAWAHARLAL NEHRU, Prime Minister of India, has issued a long statement in which he reviews "the confusion that afflicts the world today."

He says: "We shall never get out of that confusion unless we have some clarity of vision or, at any rate, are clear as to the questions posed to us." He does not pretend to have that clarity of thinking or to have any answers to our major questions.

"All I can say, in all humility, is that I am constantly thinking about these questions. In a sense, I might say that I rather envy those who have got fixed ideas and therefore need not take the trouble to look deeper into the problems of today."

From the above preamble, the reader would rightly conclude that Nehru is a philosopher. Indeed he is the only philosopher among all the rulers of state in the world today. Like Hamlet, he realizes there is "something rotten in the state of Denmark," and he would prefer to be neutral, and (in other words) he cries, "O cursed spite, that ever I was born to set it right!"

But, unlike Hamlet, Nehru does not believe in ghosts, and he is a pacifist. Being a disciple of Mahatma Gandhi, he is opposed to the use of violence in the settlement of national and international disputes. He accuses both capitalism and communism of being based on the "approach of violence" in such settlements.

He admits that capitalism has undergone a change in this respect because of its democratic development, and he roundly accuses communism of "having definitely allied itself to the approach of violence . . . Its language is of violence, its thought is violent and it does not seek to change by persuasion or peaceful, democratic pressures, but by coercion and, indeed, by destruction and extermination."

Mr. Nehru, as a neutral, has thus assumed the role of freelance referee between the East and West. He is proud of the fact that India has achieved her independence from Great Britain by peaceful means.

But he can hardly claim that Gandhi's pacifist method of achieving that separation brought peace or real independence to India. Gandhi himself met a violent death and violence spread throughout the entire country.

For over a hundred years Britain ruled the conflicting racial and religious elements of India by ordered government, and when the British administration was peacefully withdrawn those elements clashed in violent civil war. That in itself by contrast was sufficient evidence of the peace-giving character of British rule, and the folly of Gandhi's fanatic pacifism. India is now divided into two states and a third portion, Kashmir, is claimed by each of those states, who are prepared to fight for its possession.

So that what Mr. Nehru calls the "confusion that afflicts the world today" prevails right in his own country, and he had a good deal to do with bringing it about. If he can now view the world philosophically with a clear mind, he owes that to his British education at Oxford, where he played cricket; and he has admitted that he is for the most part an Englishman. Gandhi also had that training and he was more of a Christian than a Hindu in religion, but he had the fakir temperament. Mr. Nehru in his statement says the approach of violence "is completely opposed to the peaceful approach which Gandhi taught us." But one extreme always creates its opposite, and Gandhi's fanatical pacifism resulted in the violence and the confusion of which Mr. Nehru complains.

Views on Union 'Trial'

Vancouver press reports that "trial" of a labor leader charged with breaking union rules was concluded Sept. 25 before three U.S. international officials. Ralph Baker, business agent for Local 919, Cement Masons, an affiliate of the International Brotherhood of Plasterers and Cement Masons, was charged with neglect of duty and attempting to set up a purely Canadian cement masons' union and not obeying directives of U.S. union officials.

Anthony Giordano of Pittsburgh, Harry Cummings of Seattle and Thomas Turnbull of Cleveland acted on the "trial" committee and the findings will now be placed before the International Executive Board.

One wonders what members of Vancouver Local-919 think about such action: they apparently have not been considered or represented by one or more Canadians in the "trial".

The time is long overdue for Canadians to run their own affairs, particularly where they are sometimes controlled by racketeering union bosses.

DST Pain in the Neck

I was glad to see in the Colonist a short time ago that there was someone else who had the temerity to deplore daylight saving, which to some of us is a pain in the neck for the ordinary individual to get adjusted to.

Would it not be logical and feasible for those who prefer monkeying with the clocks to set their alarm clocks so that they can save that extra hour if necessary? I know for a fact that children and people in the rural districts, besides a host of work people, are bored to death with this old war-time make-believe.

Question of Standards

A prominent astrophysicist has said that, as a result of a rocket to the moon, there will be a better standard of living. "The key to it," he said, "is unlimited and cheap power."

But surely an astronomer should know that a better standard of living comes from a better standard of thinking.

A. D. ROSS.

Key to Living

If Dr. Petrie's knowledge of history, economics and politics was as extensive as his knowledge of astrophysics, it would have been impossible for him to have made the so unscientific statement that "unlimited and cheap power is the key to a better standard of living."

According to the economists only 25 per cent of the people who work for a "living" are engaged in the production of consumable wealth. The rest are engaged in socially unnecessary tasks such as selling, advertising, banking, soldiering, arms production, preaching, psychiatry, propaganda, policing, and so on. In a sane social order of social ownership, the other 75 per cent, including the 10 per cent of the total population who don't work at all now, could be put to work and average world living standards could be doubled in a very short time. This is the key to a better standard of "living".

State Industries

Your London correspondent, Oct. 12, writes that the British nationalized industries "with the exception of one airline and gas and electricity, are a liability." In some senses possibly this could be true. Yet I suggest that a very different light is thrown on the British nationalized industries (air, transport, coal, electricity, gas, atomic power, and for a short period, iron and steel) by the following facts (1958):

1. Not one is subsidized by government (and only one has ever been).
2. Nationalized industry prices have not increased nearly as much as those of private industry (e.g. speech of parliamentary secretary to minister of transport, July 11, 1955).
3. Efficiency in terms of productivity has increased under nationalization.
4. Working conditions have much improved through, e.g., pension and retirement schemes, wage increases, welfare facilities, and joint consultation schemes through which some workers at least could begin to have a say in the management of industries on which they depend.
5. The Tories, in Britain as throughout the world, apparently accept these cases of socialization and welfare improvements which they cannot, for expediency's sake, reverse. But they harass any attempt to extend, improve, and apply the great principle of co-operation in economic life, the principle that all the people together should own and control the means by which they live.

Private monopoly enterprise cannot administer successfully a welfare and co-operative system without resorting to bureaucracy and fascism, because the spirit and will to make it work are missing from the private enterprise mentality.

Link in the Chain

This week's murder mystery in The Islander is no mere storybook affair, for Detective Grant certainly did achieve the impossible.

It happens that by chance I was a sad link in the chain. In those days the block where the murder occurred was on the fringe of a residential section, and in summer the thick trees darkened the sidewalks, and holdups were so numerous that for safety I and friends would walk in the middle of the road, traffic then being light.

As organizer of Christ Church—half a block from the murder spot—I played for the impressive funeral of the victim, Mr. Salisbury, and at the time I suppose I knew nothing of the wire and torn pants evidence. Later, on reading the trial reports, I suspected that the wire was one installed by me when in 1913 I resided in the corner house where later Mr. Dabry lived. The details revealed this week confirm my suspicion.

My wife was a crude affair to keep pedestrians from short-cutting over the grass. It was about a foot off the ground. It definitely was not "barbed" wire—who would use such, and what dog would be deterred by it? But it doesn't matter now—the gallows took their grim toll.

When your reporter phoned me and asked for my reaction to a proposed show of our paintings I made it clear that I had no objection, but that the suggestion would have to come from the Art Gallery. ## Far from the Facts

In reply to the letter the Colonist published on Oct. 10, signed by a Marvin Bromfield, Beach Nest, Finnelly Road, Gordon Head, in which he referred to the Victoria shipyard workers: I feel that although this individual does not deserve the dignity of a reply, his misinformation may have a tendency to delude some of your readers. Evidently the writer is either ignorant of the facts or has been misinformed. His statements are far removed from the truth, as there has not been a strike in the local shipyards since the fall of 1951.

Regarding his statement that the shipyard workers of Victoria were so ready to harm the shareholders, I would request that he acquaint himself with the statements in the Survey of Industries published by the Financial Post for the past 10 years and he will have a better understanding of the suffering borne by the shareholders.

Mr. Bromfield referred to unemployment insurance as the modern curse, when in our opinion he should have referred to it as the modern blessing, even though it is a necessary evil through the fact that we have been unable to work out an economy that would keep our citizens employed.

Auditorium Costs

As a historian I state a few facts which will illustrate the real problem.

We have the Empress Hotel ballroom, which I have known since 1911, and it has given good accommodation to many bodies.

There is the Royal Theatre, which I remember seeing built. There was a spate of arguments of the wonderful work it was going to do for the citizens and save them money.

There is the Armory, which has also given good service to many people and organizations.

There is the Arena, which has given of its hospitality on many occasions. I remember that many statements of publicity as to what a great variety of problems it was going to solve and save money. It has not provided profit to its original supporters in any way.

Of course all rents are high; so are wages and costs of operation. I ask for some qualified keeper of records to give a list when accommodation has not been provided in any hall, or theatre, I am sure there have been few occasions when accommodation has been refused.

Even if an auditorium could be built without cost, it would cost a large sum to maintain it in good condition.

Popping Out of Jail, Mayor Hires, Fires

MAYOR PAUL EGAN storms into action

AURORA, Ill. (UPI) — Aurora's Mayor Paul Egan popped out of jail yesterday and promptly began firing, hiring, proclaiming and calling upon the federal government for assistance.

It was really all routine for Aurora's pepper-pot mayor, who has been stirring up a storm ever since he announced that he had fired his chief of police and everybody else on the force.

Egan wasn't even breathing hard as he called it a day, possibly because he kept his voice below a shout until he got around to firing his old friend, secretary and deputy liquor commissioner, Glen Palmatier.

In rapid order, his honor: —Got out of jail on bond on disorderly conduct charges, appeared twice in court, demanded a jury trial, and got a continuance until Oct. 21 because 12 good men and true couldn't be found quickly enough.

Four of Egan's jail mates, all students of St. Procopius College, weren't so lucky. They were fined $200 apiece for not clearing quickly enough when police raided an Egan rally last night.

Announced he had hired a new Aurora police chief, identified only as "Senor Carr," a Spanish noble who is equally adept with a sword, pistol, catch-as-catch-can, and no holds barred, and who can evict this goon who is usurping the office as police chief.

In New York, a publicity man revealed he had recommended "Senor Carr" to Egan. The mayor was apparently following a bent for publicity-minded lawmen. He hired a pretty Chicago publicity girl as chief last month, but she quit on him.

Demanding protection from the U.S. marshal to put down an "insurrection."

(He didn't get it.)

Meanwhile, Don Curran, the police chief Egan is trying to fire, served warning that "if Egan continues his threats and abuse of myself and of our policemen, we'll lock him up like any other bum."

The 60-year-old mayor tried to get back at Curran last night, but Curran ever since the chief refused to lead an anti-bingo crusade.

String Is His Hobby

Tilden Swank of Hooversville, Pa., poses with a 135-pound ball of string which he has collected over the past 10 years. The ball, 27 inches in diameter, has not grown much in the past few years because of a change by most stores from string to gummed tape. The 85-year-old man also collects four-leaf clovers, old pennies and nickels, and marbles. — (AP Photofax.)

'Without Reservation'

Labor Council Backs Chest's Campaign

It is right that members of an effort which concerns us organized labor join with all the other local citizens in the Community Chest drive, Robert C. Barrie, president of the Victoria Labor Council, told the council last night.

"It is the policy of the Canadian Labor Congress to endorse the united appeal and a statement has been issued emphasizing the stand of the Victoria Labor Council—support without reservation," Mr. Barrie said.

"Our participation in the affairs of the community calls upon us to recognize the responsibility we must share in Barrie said.

Social Who's Who

Canada's 'Crust' Finds Out Today Where It Stands

MONTREAL (CP)—The last shred of secrecy soon will be torn from Canada's first blue book of blue bloods.

The long-touted, often-troubled Social Register of Canada, a bread pudding of 40,000 names from the upper crust, is to appear at last on the Canadian scene.

Mailing of the first copies of the gold-embossed, blue-bound book is to begin today.

DETAILED LISTINGS

Inside the inch-thick directory are the names, addresses (city and country), titles, decorations, clubs and phone numbers of most Canadians the register regards as socially acceptable. But register officials say some who are not also are listed.

Emerging on a country that never knew its elite in such detail, the list may provoke pique, wrath, curiosity, controversy or utter indifference.

It'll depend largely on who's in and who's out.

300 ARBITERS

Secrecy has cloaked the whole operation. Some 300 arbiters across Canada were asked—for a fee—to nominate notables of their hometowns for inclusion in the bible of blue bloods.

Names flooded in, and the registry office sent out formal notices to those named. Charlotte Whittin, former Ottawa mayor and one of those nominated, snorted in her column that she was already in an obituary book of "thoroughbreds"—a Holstein cow named after her was in the directory of pedigree cattle.

WATCHMAN'S WIFE

A watchman's wife in Vancouver said she'd been invited to send biographical details to the registry.

The book itself is not sold. It is available only to members of the Social Register Association of Canada, which is open only to people listed in the book.

Membership fee is $25. Selection of people for the roll call for Canada's aristocracy was on the basis of merit and good deeds as well as social graces. Some women who've never shown or attended a cock-

CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS

—by Byrne Hope Sanders

MONTREAL, Oct. 16th—Watch it grow! I'm thinking of the new series of Canada Savings Bonds now on sale at the BANK OF MONTREAL. As in previous CSB issues, you pay only 5% down and the balance in 11-monthly instalments. This means you can buy a $50-bond for $2.50 down-payment or a $100-bond with a $5 down-payment. What's more, they have a yield of approximately 4.1% if held to maturity. Safe, dependable.

Canada Savings Bonds are an investment in Canada's future—and in your own. Why not drop in today and buy your bond at the nearest branch of "My Bank"? Then watch your investment grow!

"MOTHER, YOU'RE A DOLLI!" That's warm praise to hear. Make them these cookies with EAGLE BRAND Sweetened Condensed Milk, and you'll win it. They're moist, chewy cookies you can make in about 10 mins. ... Cocomat Peanut Macaroons Blend 2 1/2 cups Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk (half 1-lb. can), 3 cups shredded coconut, 1 cup coarsely chopped peanuts, and 1 tsp. vanilla. Drop by teaspoonfuls on well-greased baking sheet about 1 inch apart. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg.) until a delicate brown—about 8-10 mins. Remove from pan at once. Makes about 30 cookies.

I'M A REAL FAN for anything I can use in a lot of different ways... especially when it makes my cookery taste better! That's why I depend so much on BAKER'S CHOCOLATE CHIPS—those unusually delicious, deeply-rich bits of chocolate goodness. Baker's Chocolate Chips do magic things to cookies, cakes, desserts and frostings—and do them more flavorfully than any other chocolate chips I know. Their unflinching crunch, fresh quality is perfectly preserved by the exclusive foil package, which keeps the chips as fresh as the day they were made.

I LIKE TO SEE A HIGH-SPIRITED DOG—a dismal pup depresses me. That's why I make sure that our Mr. Kipps feeds on the food that is best for him—DR. BALLARD'S CHAMPION DOG FOOD. Dr. Ballard's is the veterinary diet that contains all the nutrients a dog needs. I'm sure you'll find your pet will do equally well on this long-time favourite of dogs and their owners. Give him Chicken, Liver or Regular—each one is a flavour he'll eat with gusto. Dr. Ballard's has constant uniformity and quality in every tin—with balanced nourishment that encourages a shiny coat, bright eyes and a cheery outlook on life. Get Dr. Ballard's for your pet today, won't you?

HELP NEEDED! ... sometimes it's a problem to satisfy hearty cool-weather appetites. Here's my suggestion—bake a high, light and handsome cake for dessert—or perhaps a flaky pie. And make sure your baking is extra-successful by using BLUE BONNET MARGARINE. Blue Bonnet is now, and always has been, an all-vegetable margarine—with essential vitamins and minerals added. Use it for all your baking and as a spread for bread. Perfect, too, as a topping for vegetables. Blue Bonnet is tops in flavour, nutrition and energy-building qualities.

MOTHER TALK: WILL YOU JOIN ME FOR A MOMENT in agreeing that breakfast is a most important meal? Will you agree, too, that a delicious hot cereal, such as RED RIVER is the best way to stimulate appetites on a brisk Fall morning? We've always served Red River in our family because everyone enjoys the delicate flavor of the blended cracked wheat, rye and flax. Cooks in just a few minutes, too. Best of all, Red River is wonderful for all age groups. Active workers and youngsters find it contains energy values for strenuous days. Sedentary workers and older people find that it guards regularity. Do order some Red River Cereal this week!

I MUST STRING TOGETHER SOME ADJECTIVES... for I need them to describe the nut-like, sweet, delicate, delectable flavor that only HOVIS BREAD has. There's really nothing like it—and it's equally delicious plain, or toasted. Hovis has five times the amount of wheat germ that ordinary whole wheat breads contain, and is an excellent source of Vitamin B<sub>1</sub> complex, including the very important Vitamin B<sub>12</sub>. Serve Hovis for luncheon sandwiches; toast it for breakfast; make party treats, placing your favorite tid-bits on dainty slices of Hovis. Hovis is a "must" in our house. At better bake shops and grocery stores.

DOUBLY DELICIOUS!—COMBINE TWO vegetable favourites—MINUTE RICE and carrots—for a flavourous treat with any meal. Easy-to-prepare Minute Rice goes with almost everything—and it "fixes itself" in just 5 minutes... plump, tender, separate kernels every time.

Carrot Rice

Add 1-1/2 cups Minute Rice and 1/2 teaspoon salt to 1-1/2 cups boiling water in saucepan. Mix just to moisten all rice. Cover, remove from heat, and let stand 5 minutes. Add 1 cup hot finely diced cooked carrots, 3 tablespoons butter and a dash of pepper. Mix lightly with a fork.

Women Still In Shock After Wild Car Ride

NANAIMO — Two women were still in shock in hospital here late yesterday after they survived a wild ride in their car down a 150-foot embankment into a water-filled ditch.

Reported in "satisfactory" condition with undetermined injuries and shock at Nanaimo hospital, the women were brought here by ambulance from the scene of the accident.

Marie Fredrickson and Mrs. Mathilda Dillon, believed both to be from Kelsey Bay.

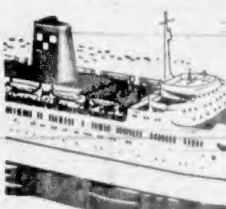

The two were rushed to hospital when Mrs. Fredrickson crawled back up to the road from the wreckage of the car after it left Highway 39 near Craig's Crossing, 20 miles north of here, and plunged over the steep bank around 4 a.m.

An unidentified motorist, who stopped when he saw the incident, is credited with saving Mrs. Dillon from possible death.

He was reported to have made his way down the bank and pulled the unconscious woman from the wrecked car after phoning for help.

The two women were still unable last night to give authorities an account of the accident. Hospital authorities said injuries of the two were not believed to be serious. The accident was attended by Qualicum Beach RCMP.

Picked Wrong Mountie

NANAIMO—Error in judgment by a Nanaimo man was pointed out to Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts yesterday.

"He tried a swing at our largest policeman," said Prosecutor Const. William Healey after Byron Scott, no fixed address, had pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by using obscene language.

"I don't like this sort of thing. I'm going to drop on you heavily," the magistrate said, after sentencing Scott to a $50 fine or 21 days' imprisonment.

Up-Island Road Socred's Target

COURTENAY (CP)—Dan Campbell, Social Credit member of the legislature for Comox, is to set up a committee this week-end to promote early construction of a north island road. The province has given a target date of 1960, but Mr. Campbell is seeking federal participation for an earlier start to the project.

Lions Club to Meet In Public Restrooms

PORT ALBERNI — The city's public restrooms, closed for many years, may become club headquarters for Alberni Valley Lions Club.

The building on Second Avenue North had been turned down by the old age pensioners organization when offered to them by the city last year.

Dangerous Fish Swim Into Island Waters

NANAIMO (CP)—Barracuda, a hatch of salmon fry is in and fish similar to the Portu- increased substantially by the guise man o' war swam into Vancouver Island waters this summer, federal fisheries in- spected Tom Carscadden said.

Carscadden attributes this oddity to one of the hottest summers on record. The fish were carried farther north than ever before recorded in history.

He told a luncheon group Tuesday that the three-week delay of the Adams River salmon run was also caused by the heat which raised the temperature of the water in the Strait of Georgia to over 70 degrees. This caused the homing salmon to go in through Johnson Strait rather than through Juan de Fuca, and to linger at the entrance of the strait until fall temperatures cooled the inland waters.

Carscadden asked for assistance from the public in stopping destruction of salmon by snaring or gaffing them illegally in creeks and inlets or simply tossing them out of the water onto the banks.

He pointed out that the two per cent recovery expected from

Port Alberni Wins M & B Suit

PORT ALBERNI — The suit brought against the City of Port Alberni by MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd. has been dismissed in Supreme Court in Vancouver.

The company had referred to the courts last June the question of the legality of the city's levy for school taxes on company property covered by the fixed assessment agreement.

Announcement of the decision by Mr. Justice Arthur Lord, Tuesday, in favor of the city, was made at council meeting Tuesday evening when Mayor Loran Jordan stated that the judgment will mean between $3,000,000 and $5,000,000 to Port Alberni in the period before ex- der the fixed assessment agree- ment the tax could not be col- lected.

Ald. Norman Odgers, chair- man of the finance committee, said, "I'm very gratified. We can go ahead now with the as- surance that payment of the tax is definite for the next seven years."

IWA Rejecting Pay Decision

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Jack Holst, president of the International Woodworkers of America local here, said Wednes- day that members are turning down the majority award of a conciliation board by a 90-per- cent majority.

The 2,000 members of the IWA in northern B.C. started casting ballots Tuesday to accept or reject the board's recom- mendation. So far 300 members have voted.

The board recommended no wage increases.

'Conduct Exemplary'

Court Won't Stop Hamilton Pickets

TORONTO (CP) — An application for an injunction restraining pickets from obstructing entrances to the Hamilton plant of the Steel Company of Canada was rejected by the Ontario Supreme Court Wednesday.

The United Steelworkers union contended that its conduct in the picket lines had been exemplary except for one incident.

Mr. Justice H. A. Aylen awarded court costs against Steelco and said the company could renew its application should similar incidents occur. The company's application named as defendants five officers of United Steelworkers of America Local 1005: John M. Lissom, H. Pomeroy, William Powell, J. Ishiston and S. Gordon.

All were said to have played leading roles in picket organization since 7,500 men walked off the job Aug. 12 after the company rejected union demands for a new contract which included a 10-cent-an-hour package deal.

Hawks to Ring Seattle Area

SEATTLE (AP)—The army announced yesterday it will install Hawk supersonic missiles in the Seattle-Tacoma-Olympia area to supplement existing Nike sites.

The initial program is for six Hawk batteries ringed Puget Sound. Each would cost $1,500,000, plus land acquisition, and would be manned by 75 officers and men.

A land survey to select sites will be started at once. To save money, government property will be used where possible.

The Hawk, a bullet-shaped ground-to-air missile, is 16 feet long. It was developed by the Raytheon Manufacturing Co. The announcement was made by Col. John R. Day, commanding officer of Ft. Lawton and Col. John K. McCormick, army air defence commander here.

McCormick said building of Hawk bases is planned for 1960, with about one year required for construction.

Each Hawk will have up to 12 launchers, each capable of firing three missiles. Bases will be located on high ground in most cases, with each site covering about 60 acres.

The Hawk was described as an effective low-altitude weapon that can home on aerial targets at tree-top level. McCormick said it will "complement and supplement the high-altitude Nike."

McCormick said the Hawk has "multiple warhead capabilities." He declined to say specifically if these include nuclear warheads, but indicated they do.

TORONTO (CP)—The Russian education system, its leaders say, is producing more than scientific Sputnik-builders.

A series of articles by Soviet teachers, written for the University of Toronto Quarterly, says the U.S.S.R. has institutions that teach everything from philosophy to the art of being a theatre critic.

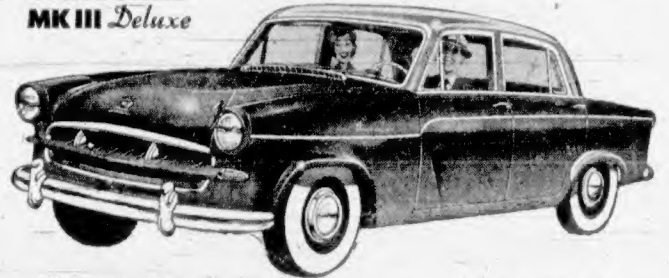

articles. They point out that the state-sponsored and state-controlled Russian institutions also teach political economy, philosophy, the humanities, foreign languages, literature, history, archaeology, art, music and the theatre.

The articles were obtained through the Russian embassy in Ottawa by editor Professor Douglas Grant.

New Experimental Car

No Wheel, No Pedals

NEW YORK (AP)—An automobile without steering wheel, brake pedal or foot accelerator, but with nearly everything else that could be crowded into its mechanism, will go on public display today.

The newest of General Motors' experimental models—the Firebird III—it has top billing at the revived Motorama.

No engineering expert has made a public estimate of the cost involved in putting Firebird III together. It undoubtedly is the costliest automobile ever built. It is the first car ever designed around a single-stick control system.

Aside from the hand-control acceleration, steering and braking, the car has a two-engine system—a 10-horsepower aluminum piston-type unit to drive all accessories, and a 225-horsepower gas turbine engine to drive the rear wheels.

A two-passenger vehicle, the Firebird III is missile-like in appearance. Its body is of fiberglass. It has a wide, tapered nose, twin plastic bubbles over the passengers and seven fins clustered around the rear of the body.

Electronics, transistors and computers are used lavishly. The interior of the equipment section resembles the inside of a complicated electronic book-keeping machine. By the push of a button the car can be converted to automatic guidance and speed control.

The control stick is located in the centre of the car. It is easily operated by either passenger. The stick, with a wing-shaped handle, is moved slightly forward for acceleration, to right and left for steering and rearward for braking. A button on the control handle actuates a downhill retarder unit mounted on the differential.

Residential Canvass Prospects Good

Workers, Unions Do 'Bang-Up' Job for Chest

The future looks bright for the Community Chest's residential canvass campaign chairman Justin Harbord said last night.

House-to-house collecting began yesterday and will continue today. "Clean up" calls may be level than last year," Mr. Harraised from the residential canvass last year.

Target for this year's canvass is $67,000. Some 2,000 voluntary collectors are spotted throughout the city tomorrow and Saturday to end the drive.

"Early indications are that the giving is at a much higher level than last year," Mr. Har-with lists of addresses to visit. Mr. Harbord also paid tribute to the working people of Greater Victoria for their support of this drive to raise $67,000 this year.

"We have never had anything like this in the history of the Chest," he said.

"If the wealthy do as well as workers, nearly six well persons as the working man and woman of this city, the community chest will not only meet its objective but will go well beyond it," he said.

Mr. Harbord cited five stations where working men and women had exceeded themselves in supporting the campaign to date.

Stoke Lake Lumber Co. employees last year donated a total of $180 to the Chest. This year their donation totals $1,200.

Workers at Yarrow's shipyard although working on a limited shift basis of two weeks on and two weeks off, have each pledged $5 a month a total of $1,000 for the year.

C.I.U. employees on James Island, about 100, have also pledged a total of $1,000 for the year. They are doing a bang-up job," he said. "I find it difficult to express my appreciation. They brought in 31 new payroll deduction schemes operating in Victoria, with employees pledging from $6 to $20 a year.

And Mr. Harbord added tremendous cooperation has been received from union leaders. "They are doing a bang-up job," he said. "I find it difficult to express my appreciation. They

Once Lepers, Next Campers

A former leper colony island in the Gulf Islands chain was yesterday set aside by the provincial government for future development as a marine park.

D'Auxy Island in Haro Strait, near Sidney Island was used as a leper colony during the 1892-1922 period and was then returned to the provincial government by the federal government.

The provincial parks board recommended it be preserved for a marine park because of its proximity to Vancouver Island and because many of the Gulf Islands are already privately owned.

The government's plan is to set aside 1.8 acres in the Clayoquot district for recreation use.

Heavy Patches

Fog Snarls Air Service

Season's First May Linger

First thick fog of the season closed in over the Greater Victoria area in heavy patches last night, slowing automobile traffic and snarling airline schedules.

Service from Patricia Bay Airport may be held up as late as 10 a.m. today.

The weatherman said last night the fog was expected to linger over this area and on the mainland this morning.

WORST THIS FALL

A TransCanada Air Lines official said the fog was the worst so far this fall. Vancouver International Airport was fogbound by mid-afternoon yesterday and all flights were cancelled. Service to Seattle was also grounded.

But the emergency proved that runways at Patricia Bay Airport could handle a big, four-engine aircraft completing an international flight.

UNABLE TO LAND

Canadian Pacific Airlines flight from Buenos Aires and Mexico City landed at Patricia Bay about 5 p.m. when it was unable to land at Vancouver or the emergency field at Abbotsford.

A CPA official said no difficulty was experienced in landing with only a few passengers. A light fog had drifted in over the field at Patricia Bay.

MIDNIGHT BOAT

Passengers were checked through customs and brought into Victoria to the Empress Hotel to await the midnight boat to Vancouver.

The CPA spokesman said TransCanada Air Lines main terminal crews "did a fine job of servicing the aircraft."

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The nation's hope for a tax overhaul has been dashed by a Senate vote Tuesday that would keep the current tax system in place. After months of promising sweeping new reforms, the House failed to pass a bill.

He knows the Score!

Right now, football — and thoughts of football — take up his every waking moment. When not out with the team, he's hidden behind the sports page and tied to Dan's newspaper. Ask him the score in the game that in Venice he's seen on a big screen, and he'll tell you... probably tell you the yards gained into the bargain.

But he knows the score on more serious things, too. Take savings for instance. For the past year, he's opened his own savings account at the B of M where they're building a general account for the school children. But this year, it's his turn to contribute by depositing a part of his pay into a savings account. Next on his list is a pair of skates. Next he'll have them, too. He's got the cash open-

Why not open a savings account for your youngster this Friday afternoon? It only takes a minute to start. Then when it comes to attaining those other, more important goals in life he'll know the score... his sense of trust and responsibility — gained through having his own savings account as a boy — will be one of his most valuable assets.

Special School Children's Wicket
Open every Friday afternoon from 4.30 to 6.

WE SPENT 2 YEARS

ON YOUR BABY'S DINNERS

Prepared and fresh-packed in the Niagara District.

That's how long it took before our specialists were satisfied with the recipe for Gerber's Strained and Junior New Meat Dinners. After extensive nutritional research, 72 different formulas were prepared and evaluated to get a product with unusual flavor interest and high nutritional value. Then, a special panel of 1500 babies taste-tested the 2 formulas considered best to pick the winner.

All Gerber Baby Foods are laboratory and nursery tested like this to insure products worthy of your precious baby. For when it comes to babies, mothers and Gerber agree — it's quality first.

The charm and simplicity of afternoon tea is reflected in the arrangement of pink tea roses in the adjacent front garden and in the dainty tea cups of Royal Worcester.

Nice Cup o' Tea Piece of Cake Will Relax You

The notion that tea is a simple drink is a misconception. It is a complex drink, and it is a pleasure to drink it. The tea is served in a beautiful cup and saucer, and it is a pleasure to drink it.

WHY SHOULD I WEAR GLASSES?

A great many people who wear glasses can see clearly without them. Lenses are not used alone to produce clear vision but to give comfortable and effective seeing, without fatigue or eyestrain. A good rule is to have your eyes examined regularly and bring your prescription to us.

Canadians Praised

Optimism Backed By Cash

Canadians are prepared to confidence in Canada's future. F. G. Henry, president of the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors, said in a speech yesterday.

Mr. Henry, who is visiting Canada, said he was struck by the sense of confidence in the future of Canada by Canadians.

EXTENSIVE WORK

He said he was "impressed" by the "extensive" work done through chartered surveyors, especially by American Island, a planned industrial estate on the Fraser River.

Mr. Henry, who will meet members of the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors today, said the extent of his visit is the surveying work being done there, home and abroad, that they have not been forgotten by the parent body.

The organization has more than 2,000 members and is a commonwealth-wide body of which Canada is a member.

Knows a type of surveying as big as others, based on the American Island, in the Canadian North.

What do Canadians really think about Americans?

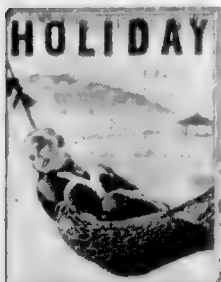

17 million Canadians are looking at America through the biggest picture window in the world. They see the American continent, booming, but anxious, interested. In the November issue, HOLIDAY Magazine, top Canadian author Hugh MacLennan explains the border from across the ocean, giving you the why and what of the American attitude toward Americans. Why do Canadians think and feel as they do about America? It takes a look at some of the reasons, from important ones, such as housing, defense, and social issues, to a gentleman with an amateur opinion on a do-it-yourself foundation, and shared history, in other words, the fact that both countries have been in the same feature what Canadian-American relations have been and what can be expected for the future.

And in this look to the future, find out what the Seaway will mean not only to the economy, but to the importance of Canada. Also, read about the newest border, 2000 miles deeper into Canada than the existing American-Canadian border. When can you know why Canadians and Americans also feel it is the final picture of peace and understanding between two of the world's largest countries. It's here in glowing words and colorful pictures, try another exciting HOLIDAY feature you won't want to miss.

Legal to Divert Columbia

Canada in the Right Weather Forecast

MONTREAL (C.P.)—Two lawyers who have pondered the problems of boundary waters between Canada and the United States say that Canada has every legal right to divert rivers in the Columbia River basin. The sometimes bitter dispute centuries of efforts to settle squabbles between the neighboring nations over who has what rights on rivers and lakes that start in one country and end in the other. The 2,000-mile border, about 2,000 miles are marked by common waters. The book was written by Montreal lawyer L. M. Bloom field an authority on international law and Dr. Gerald E. Fitzgerald of the legal staff of the International Civil Aviation Commission.

The authors say the Columbia dispute has "somewhat obscured the successful half-century role of the international commission in settling river disputes between nations."

If the report is paid to the experience gained by the commission in dealing with a wide variety of complex problems, it is hoped that the Columbia controversy will be settled, they said.

'U.S. Moves into First Place'

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI)—first powered test flight by next Vice president Richard Nixon yesterday unveiled the first piloted space ship and fully asserted that the United States has "moved into first place in the race to outer space."

Known by the unglamorous name of X-15, the rocket ship is America's gleaming hope for the launching last week of a moon rocket which reached 78,000 miles into space and through completion of the X-15 aircraft.

Nixon said no one questioned Russia's sensational accomplishments in launching satellites, but declared that America's space programs are "in an

NBC Shows Moving to KING And Off Many Local Screens

Reception of NBC television programs in Greater Victoria such as Jack Paar and Steve Allen will be difficult about a year from now as a result of start-up plans announced by NBC yesterday.

The network has ended affiliations with its present TV and radio stations in Seattle and Portland, effective in about a year, and has affiliated with stations of the King broadcast ing Company in Seattle, Spokane and Portland.

When the changeover occurs, such NBC shows as Perry Como, Jack Paar and Steve Allen will be seen on KING-TV (channel 5) instead of KOMO-TV (channel 4).

Until the change, King stations are secondary NBC affiliates and can air any NBC programs the present outlets do not want. It's uncertain if KOMO stations will pick up ABC-TV and radio shows now on the King outlets.

NBC officials explained the change by saying, "Our company has been traditionally associated with the outstanding TV and radio stations."

'Don't Be Misled by Monty Memoirs'

TORONTO (CP) — Lord Beaverbrook said yesterday he hopes no one will be misled by the Montgomery memoirs into thinking the British wartime commander's plan of campaign would have resulted in a British-American occupation of Berlin.

Lord Beaverbrook, in Toronto, said in an interview that plans for the occupation of Berlin had been determined at the diplomatic level long before the war ended.

Field Marshal Montgomery said in his memoirs that his plan for the Western Allies after the breakout in northern France in 1944 was for a single thrust into the Ruhr Valley.

He proposed a 40-division drive into Germany and on to Berlin after the Normandy fighting had left the Germans disorganized. Instead, the Western Allies advanced on a broad front.

Lord Beaverbrook, a Canadian-born publisher who served as minister of aircraft production in Prime Minister Churchill's cabinet during the Second World War, said:

"Long before the war was over the European advisory commission — with John G. Winant of the United States as chairman, William Strang for the British, Dedor Gusev for the Russians — had already defined what the zones of occupation for the Allied armies were to be when the war was over."

LORD BEAVERBROOK ... decided long before

Under the commission agreement the Russians were to occupy Berlin and the British and Americans would be required to move to a given line between the occupation zones, whether that meant at war's end they moved backward or forward.

Gen. Guenther Blumentritt, chief of staff of the German western armies under Field Marshal Erich von Rundstedt, commented on Lord Montgomery's plan that he was "absolutely convinced that the war would have been over by Christmas, 1944, that there would have been a saving of Allied lives and that the Western Allies would have been in Berlin before the Russians, had Montgomery's plan been carried out."

Lord Beaverbrook said: "The fact is our entry into Berlin would have merely meant withdrawal later and handing over the capital to the Russians as had been agreed by the European advisory commission earlier than Christmas, 1944."

Lord Montgomery's memoirs are being serialized by Life Magazine.
